INVESTMENT POLICY SCHEDULE

1. The primary investment policy objective should be to maximize earnings while ensuring the safety and stability in value of the capital fund. Consideration should also be given to the cash-flow requirements of the Funds.
2. In order to protect the capital fund against the volatility of exchange rates and of monetary conditions in the international capital markets, there should be a policy of diversification in the choice of currencies and securities for investment. On the basis of historical experience in exchange rate movements and since the unit of account and the currency of disbursement of the Funds is the U.S. Dollar, 50 per cent of the Funds should be invested in U.S. dollars and 50 per cent in a group of currencies comprising the Deutsche Mark, the Japanese Yen and the Swiss Franc. This distribution may be re-examined and changed by the ASEAN Secretary General on the advice of the Advisory Group if circumstances warrant it.
3. Investment should be restricted to placement of deposits with banks and the purchase of fixed income securities including floating rate certificates of deposit and floating rate notes.
4. Deposits with banks and purchases of certificates of deposit including floating rate certificates of deposit should be restricted to the top 50 banks in the world ranked according to total assets. Such investments should have a remaining period to maturity not exceeding three years.
5. To minimize the risk of loss of capital through default of a borrower, purchases of fixed-income securities should be confined to the following:
 - (a) securities issued or fully guaranteed by the governments or central banks and monetary authorities of the member countries of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) and of the Association of South-East Asian Nations (ASEAN);

- (b) Securities issued by international financial institutions, such as the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (the World Bank), the Asian Development Bank and entities of the European Communities; and
- (c) other securities which have been rated as top grade securities by well-known rating agencies provided that holdings of such securities do not exceed 10% of the Funds at any time.

The purchases of these securities should be restricted to those having a remaining period to maturity not exceeding five years except where market conditions make it difficult to observe this restriction, in which case purchases of securities of a longer maturity may be permitted provided that the remaining period of maturity does not exceed fifteen years. Holdings of each security should not exceed two per cent of the amount outstanding. To assist in monitoring the value of investments and ensuring the liquidity of investments, preference should be given to securities which are listed on stock exchanges and which are readily marketable.
